

Rules of the .HarbourClub. Forum

1. The personal details of those participating in the forum will be stored in a database and may only be viewed by the .HarbourClub.. The .HarbourClub. undertakes to treat personal details as confidential, to protect them from unauthorised access, and not to pass them on to third parties.
2. The .HarbourClub. does not accept any liability for the infringement by third parties of copyrights in texts, pictures and graphics that are published by participants in the forum.
3. Please note that items of information, which you pass on through this forum, are accessible to the public. You should therefore exercise appropriate caution in the publication of private data. Disclosure of personal information online is at your own risk.
4. The .HarbourClub. accepts no responsibility whatsoever for the content of the forum. Contributions to the forum only represent individual opinions. They may be falsified, invented or unfounded. They are not checked and may possibly not even originate from the sender named. They should never, therefore, be used as the basis for decisions.
5. The .HarbourClub. reserves the right to edit, restrict or even block individual contributions at any time, and additionally reserves the right to suspend or fully close down the operation at any time.
6. The .HarbourClub. further reserves the right to prosecute any abuses of the forum, to take action against delinquent users and to undertake the necessary server notifications. All eventual abuses are to be reported to the .HarbourClub. immediately.

Updated: September 2009